Overview

For senior executives, directors or governors in all types of organisations in all sectors, IOSH Directing Safely provides the ideal forum to understand the legal and other requirements for health and safety.

With a distinctly high-level approach, IOSH Directing Safely is a course which sets the legal scene, provides solutions to common headaches, and conveys a sense of what needs to be done to achieve compliance and peace of mind. Successful completion is rewarded with a certificate awarded by IOSH – the world’s largest health and safety organisation.

Our company developed this course for IOSH in 2001, and made its very first delivery. Our exceptional tutors continue to deliver this best-in-class training for senior managers across the world.

Target Audience

Executive directors, non-executive directors, presidents and vice-presidents, members of executive boards, school, university and other governors, Police and Crime Commissioners, chief constables, and other similar senior organisation officers

Assessment Process

The IOSH assessment consists of multiple choice questions
Participants must obtain a 70% score to pass the course
